Marketing Material Submission for Compliance Review

New Marketing Material Compliance Review Package

Website (10 pages), 3 new lead magnets, and 4 email nurture sequences

SUBMITTED BY

Date: September 21, 2026

Scott Marcoe, CRPC™ — Founder & Financial Planner, Checkpoint Planning

Checkpoint Planning — Capstone Financial Group | Ameritas Investment Company, LLC (AIC), Member FINRA/SIPC
Ameritas Advisory Services, LLC (AAS) | scott@checkpointplanning.com | (949) 702-0139

What's in This Package

This package contains every piece of new marketing material for the Checkpoint Planning lead-generation expansion, submitted together for a single compliance review pass.

1. Website — 10 pages

Home, About, Services, Our Process, Fees, and Contact (the general site), plus four dedicated landing pages for Job Loss & Layoff, Early Retirement, Divorce, and Inheritance & Unexpected Wealth. Each page below is captured exactly as it renders live, including the footer disclosures and Form CRS links.

2. Lead magnets — 4 guides

“Your Next Checkpoint” workbook (existing, previously produced) plus three new companion guides: Early Retirement, Divorce, and Inheritance — offered as opt-in downloads from the matching landing page.

3. Email nurture sequences — 4 sequences, 20 emails total

A five-email sequence for each transition (job loss, early retirement, divorce, inheritance), sent automatically after a lead magnet download, ending in an invitation to a complimentary Where We Begin session.

4. Compliance notes

A summary of the required disclosures included throughout (fiduciary/FINRA-SIPC language, Form CRS links for AIC and AAS, fee transparency language, “not investment advice” disclaimers) for quick reference during review.

Planned Distribution

The website is planned to launch at a new subdomain (start.checkpointplanning.com) first, with checkpointplanning.com itself unchanged until this material is approved. Lead magnets are offered as gated downloads on their matching landing page; email sequences are triggered automatically after a download via the firm's email platform. No paid advertising is planned until this package is approved.

ABOUT YOUR PLANNER

Meet Scott Marcoe, CRPC™

Scott is a financial planner and CRPC™ professional who helps people find clarity and direction during major life and career transitions. As founder of Checkpoint Planning and creator of The Checkpoint Strategy, he brings structure and calm to moments that often feel chaotic.

His planning philosophy was forged on the race course. As a State Champion mountain bike racer and National Champion in 24-hour endurance racing, Scott learned that winning required breaking a massive challenge into manageable checkpoints and adjusting to real conditions along the way. Financial transitions work the same way.

"One checkpoint at a time."

Based in Orange County, California — serving clients across the United States, primarily via video conference and the Checkpoint Planning Client Portal.

OUR COMMITMENT

What you can always expect from Checkpoint Planning.

These are not aspirational statements. They are structural commitments built into how this practice operates.

- ✓ Fiduciary Standard
We are legally required to act in your best interest at all times — not the firm's, not a product manufacturer's, and not our own.
- ✓ No Long-Term Contracts
Planning engagements are flat-fee agreements. Investment management relationships can be terminated at any time.
- ✓ Commission Disclosure
Some insurance and annuity products carry commissions. When that's the case, it's disclosed to you in writing before any recommendation.
- ✓ Full Fee Transparency
Every fee is disclosed before work begins. Planning fees are flat. Investment management fees are AUM-based and billed monthly.
- ✓ Direct Access to Your Planner
You work directly with Scott in every meeting, every review, every planning conversation. Never handed off to a junior associate.
- ✓ Coordinated Planning
We work with your existing CPA, estate attorney, and other advisors so your decisions are never made in silos.

FAQ

Questions we hear most often.

What does the first meeting look like?

The "Where We Begin" session is a 45-minute clarity conversation. We ask about your situation, your goals, and what feels most uncertain. No preparation needed.

How are you different from an advisor at a bank?

We are an independent, fee-based practice. We do not sell proprietary products, meet sales quotas, or earn commissions on managed assets. Our only financial incentive is the fee you pay us.

Do you only work with clients in California?

No. While we are based in Irvine, we serve clients across the United States. Most planning work is done via video conference and our online client portal.

What does investment management cost?

Fees are charged as a percentage of assets under management, billed monthly. Rates range from 0.65% to 1.25% depending on portfolio size, stepping down as assets grow.

Do I have to use your investment management service?

No. Planning and investment management are separate services. Some clients engage us for planning only. We discuss what makes sense in the Where We Begin session.

Who is a good fit for Checkpoint Planning?

Someone navigating a major life transition who needs a structured process and a fiduciary advocate. If that describes you, you are likely a strong fit.

ABOUT YOUR PLANNER

Financial planner. CRPC™ professional. Endurance athlete.

Scott Marcoe helps people find clarity and confidence during major life and career transitions — job loss, career change, divorce, early retirement, and inheritance.

MEET SCOTT MARCOE, CRPC™

The planner behind the practice.

Scott Marcoe is a financial planner and CRPC™ professional who helps people find clarity and direction during major life and career transitions. As the founder of Checkpoint Planning and creator of The Checkpoint Strategy, he brings structure and calm to moments that often feel chaotic.

Scott's approach to planning is shaped by his background as a competitive endurance athlete. He is a State Champion mountain bike racer and a National Champion in 24-hour mountain bike racing. The long training hours, constantly changing terrain, and mental discipline required for endurance success influenced the philosophy behind The Checkpoint Strategy. Training to win meant having a clear goal, breaking the work into smaller checkpoints, and adjusting to real conditions along the way. Financial transitions follow the same pattern — progress happens through checkpoints, pacing, and smart decisions made under real circumstances.

Scott's planning process breaks big financial questions into clear, manageable steps so clients can stabilize quickly, build confidence, and move forward at a pace that feels right. His work is grounded in empathy, experience, and the belief that clarity creates confidence.

"One checkpoint at a time." That is the philosophy Scott learned from endurance racing, and the foundation of how he helps people navigate financial transitions.

Scott lives in Orange County, California and supports clients across the United States.

WHERE TO START

Starting the journey toward your goals.

We start by helping you prioritize what's most important to you today and in the future. Together we review the following areas of your financial life.

Life Transitions

- ☐ Recently moved or considering a relocation
- ☐ Job loss, layoff, or career change
- ☐ Getting married or divorced
- ☐ Recently retired or planning to retire
- ☐ Loss of a spouse or loved one
- ☐ Receiving a gift or inheritance
- ☐ Adding to family through birth or adoption

Tax Planning

- ☐ Income tax strategies
- ☐ Tax impact of severance or settlement
- ☐ Estimated quarterly tax payments
- ☐ Capital gain/loss strategies
- ☐ Roth conversion analysis
- ☐ Coordinating with my CPA

Investments and Retirement

- ☐ 401(k) or IRA rollover decision
- ☐ Retirement readiness projection
- ☐ Social Security timing strategy
- ☐ Pension election analysis
- ☐ Required minimum distributions
- ☐ Portfolio review and asset allocation
- ☐ Roth conversion and tax planning

Cash Flow and Debt

- ☐ Monthly budget feels unmanageable
- ☐ Building or rebuilding an emergency fund
- ☐ Debt payoff or reduction strategy
- ☐ Managing severance or lump-sum income
- ☐ Understanding my financial runway
- ☐ Planning for a major purchase or expense

Insurance and Risk Management

- ☐ Health coverage after leaving employer
- ☐ Reviewing life and disability income insurance
- ☐ Long-term care planning
- ☐ Reviewing beneficiary designations
- ☐ Umbrella or liability coverage
- ☐ Medicare planning

Estate and Legacy

- ☐ Reviewing or creating a will or trust
- ☐ Updating beneficiary designations
- ☐ Powers of attorney and healthcare directives
- ☐ Wealth transfer and gifting strategy
- ☐ Charitable giving planning
- ☐ Divorce financial planning (QDRO, settlement)
- ☐ Coordinating with an estate attorney

One checkpoint at a time.

Not sure where your situation fits? The Where We Begin session is the easiest way to find out — complimentary, no obligation, 45 minutes.

THE CHECKPOINT STRATEGY™

Your unique transition. Our systematic process.

A structured, five-phase planning process designed to bring clarity and confidence to life's most important financial transitions. Every engagement follows the same path.

AWARENESS & DIRECTION

Where We Begin™

Understand what is changing, define priorities, and establish a clear starting point.

SECURE THE ESSENTIALS

Identify & Protect™

Stabilize cash flow, review benefits and insurance, and protect what matters most.

CREATE THE ROADMAP

Plot Checkpoints™

Set 30-, 90-, and 180-day milestones with a plan built around your situation.

TAKE INTENTIONAL ACTION

Implement™

Execute the plan with focus, coordination, and support at every step.

ADAPT & MAINTAIN

Track & Reset™

Review progress, adjust as life evolves, and stay aligned with your goals.

The "Where We Begin" session is complimentary and carries no obligation. It is a 45-minute clarity conversation to understand where you are, what is changing, and whether working together makes sense.

WORKING TOGETHER

From your first call to your ongoing relationship.

Here's what a typical client engagement looks like from first contact through the first year. Every engagement is customized to your situation, but the structure remains consistent.

BEFORE DAY 1Where We Begin Session

A complimentary 45-minute clarity conversation. We discuss your situation, your goals, and whether Checkpoint Planning is the right fit. No cost, no obligation.

WEEK 1 TO 2Engagement and Data Gathering

You complete our financial intake and we gather the documents we need: account statements, tax returns, benefit summaries, estate documents, and anything else relevant.

WEEK 2 TO 4Plan Development

We build your personalized financial plan in the Checkpoint Planning Client Portal, including cash flow analysis, retirement projections, scenario modeling, and a prioritized action list.

WEEK 4 TO 6

Plan Presentation

We walk through your plan together, explain every recommendation, and confirm your priorities. You leave with a clear 30-, 90-, and 180-day roadmap.

MONTH 2 TO 3

Implementation

We execute the plan. Account rollovers, portfolio construction, insurance applications, beneficiary updates, and referrals to attorneys or CPAs where needed.

ONGOING

Track and Reset

Regular check-ins and plan reviews keep you on track as life evolves. Frequency is based on your needs and your planning engagement.

OUR COMMITMENT

What you can always expect from Checkpoint Planning.

These are not aspirational statements. They are structural commitments built into how this practice operates.

- ✓ Fiduciary Standard
We are legally required to act in your best interest at all times — not the firm's interest, not a product manufacturer's, and not our own financial interest. Yours.
- ✓ Commission Disclosure
Some insurance and annuity products carry commissions. When that is the case, it is disclosed to you in writing before any recommendation is made.
- ✓ Direct Access to Your Planner
You work directly with Scott in every meeting, every review, and every planning conversation. Your relationship is never handed off to a junior associate.
- ✓ Full Fee Transparency
Every fee is disclosed before work begins. Planning fees are flat. Investment management fees are AUM-based and billed monthly. No hidden costs. No surprises.
- ✓ No Long-Term Contracts
Planning engagements are flat-fee agreements. Investment management relationships can be terminated at any time. We earn your business by delivering value, not by locking you in.
- ✓ Coordinated Planning
We work with your existing CPA, estate attorney, and other advisors so your financial decisions are never made in silos.

One checkpoint at a time.

The best next step is a conversation. The Where We Begin session is complimentary, carries no obligation, and takes 45 minutes.

Above $3,000,000	0.65%	0.66%

*Industry average fees based on Cerulli, US Advisor Metrics 2023.

The fee schedule includes:

- Investment Management Account billing, Portfolio Performance Reporting, and Consolidated Online Account Access
- Record keeping of original cost basis
- Custom Analysis of Investment Risk Tolerance
- Asset Allocation and Portfolio Management Review

A note on strategy

We aim to address a variety of complex financial situations with plans and solutions tailored to meet your specific needs. In order to do this, we utilize a variety of investment strategies and methods. Please note that additional corresponding platform or investment strategist fees may be applied to the Advisor Fee and will vary depending on the specific platform or strategist.

Questions about pricing?

We welcome them, at any time. The Where We Begin session is a great place to start — complimentary and no obligation.

WHAT TO EXPECT

In your Where We Begin session:

You talk, we listen.

Tell us where you are, what just happened, and what feels most uncertain. No agenda, no forms.

We ask the right questions.

We help you see the financial decisions in front of you clearly, including ones you may not have considered.

We are honest about fit.

If Checkpoint Planning is the right choice for you, we explain how. If it is not, we tell you that too.

FAQ

Questions we hear most often.

What does the first meeting look like?

The "Where We Begin" session is a 45-minute clarity conversation. We ask about your situation, your goals, and what feels most uncertain. No preparation needed.

How are you different from an advisor at a bank?

We are an independent, fee-based practice. We do not sell proprietary products, meet sales quotas, or earn commissions on managed assets. Our only financial incentive is the fee you pay us.

Do you only work with clients in California?

No. While we are based in Irvine, we serve clients across the United States. Most planning work is done via video conference and our online client portal.

What does investment management cost?

Fees are charged as a percentage of assets under management, billed monthly. Rates range from 0.65% to 1.25% depending on portfolio size, stepping down as assets grow. See the full fee schedule.

How long does the planning process take?

The initial engagement typically runs four to six weeks from intake to plan presentation. Implementation follows and can take an additional two to four weeks.

Do I have to use your investment management service?

No. Planning and investment management are separate services. Some clients engage us for planning only. We discuss what makes sense in the Where We Begin session.

Who is a good fit for Checkpoint Planning?

Someone navigating a major life transition who needs a structured process and a fiduciary advocate. If that describes you, you are likely a strong fit.

What happens after the plan is delivered?

Implementation, then ongoing support. We execute the plan together, then review it regularly through the Track and Reset phase.

FAQ

Questions people ask after a layoff.

I just got laid off. What should I do first?

Start with the free workbook — it walks through severance, benefits deadlines, and your financial runway. Then schedule a free Where We Begin session to talk through your specific situation.

Does the free session cost anything?

No. The Where We Begin session is a complimentary, 45-minute clarity conversation with no obligation.

Do you help with severance and 401(k) decisions specifically?

Yes — this is core to what we do. We help you understand severance tax treatment, COBRA vs. marketplace options, and whether to roll over, leave, or otherwise handle your 401(k).

What if I haven't found a new job yet?

That's exactly who this is for. We help you build a plan around uncertainty, not around a guaranteed next paycheck.

One checkpoint at a time.

Get the free workbook, then schedule your complimentary Where We Begin session whenever you're ready to talk it through.

EARLY RETIREMENT PLANNING

Retiring earlier than planned? Make sure your money can retire too.

Whether it's your choice or the decision was made for you, early retirement changes the math — on Social Security timing, healthcare before Medicare, pension elections, and how long your portfolio needs to last. Checkpoint Planning helps you pressure-test the plan before you commit.

WHAT EARLY RETIREMENT CHANGES

The decisions that don't wait until 65.

Retiring before traditional retirement age means solving problems the standard playbook doesn't cover.

Healthcare Before Medicare

COBRA, marketplace coverage, or a spouse's plan — bridging the gap until Medicare eligibility at 65.

Social Security Timing

When to claim — and how retiring early changes the tradeoffs between claiming early, at full retirement age, or later.

Pension Elections

Lump sum vs. annuity, survivor benefit options — decisions that are usually permanent once made.

Portfolio Longevity

A "what if" retirement readiness projection that accounts for a longer retirement than you

Required Minimum Distributions

Sequencing withdrawals and Roth conversions in the years before RMDs begin.

401(k) & IRA Rollover Decisions

Whether to consolidate, roll over, or leave accounts where they are — and the tax originally planned for.

FAQ

Questions people ask about early retirement.

Is it too early to plan if I haven't set a retirement date yet?

No — the earlier we run the numbers, the more options you have. The free guide and a Where We Begin session can help you pressure-test a timeline before you commit to it.

Can you help with Social Security timing specifically?

Yes. Social Security timing strategy is part of every retirement engagement, alongside pension elections and RMD planning.

What if my retirement wasn't entirely voluntary?

Many clients arrive here after a layoff or buyout accelerated a retirement they hadn't fully planned for. We build the plan around your real timeline, not the one you expected.

Do you help figure out health coverage before Medicare?

Yes — comparing COBRA, marketplace plans, and other options is part of the Identify & Protect phase.

FAQ

Questions people ask during divorce.

Is this a replacement for my divorce attorney?

No. We work alongside your attorney, focused on the financial implications of your settlement — not the legal process itself.

Can you review a settlement before I sign it?

Yes. Understanding the real financial impact of a proposed settlement is one of the most common reasons clients reach out before finalizing.

Is our conversation confidential?

Yes. Everything discussed in a Where We Begin session and any engagement afterward is confidential.

What if I've never managed the finances before?

WHAT AN INHERITANCE PUTS IN FRONT OF YOU

Decisions worth making carefully, not quickly.

Most inheritance mistakes come from moving too fast. Here's what's actually worth thinking through.

Inherited IRA Rules

Required distribution timelines and tax treatment differ significantly depending on your relationship to the deceased.

Tax Basics

Understanding step-up in cost basis, potential capital gains, and estate versus income tax exposure.

Real Estate & Property

Debt & Goals

What It Represents

Building a portfolio and asset allocation that fits your goals and risk tolerance, not just what was inherited.

Deciding whether to pay down debt, fund goals, or invest — often all three, in the right proportion.

Space to think through what this money means to you, and how you want to honor it, before deciding what to do with it.

FAQ

Questions people ask after an inheritance.

Do I need to decide what to do with the money right away?

Almost never. Aside from a few tax deadlines worth knowing about, most decisions can — and should — wait until you've had time to think clearly.

I inherited a retirement account. What are the rules?

Inherited IRA distribution rules vary based on your relationship to the original owner and when they passed. This is one of the most common questions we help clients work through.

Can you help me decide what to do with an inherited house?

Yes — we help weigh the financial tradeoffs of keeping, renting, or selling inherited property alongside your broader plan.

I feel guilty about the money. Is that normal?

Very common. The Where We Begin session gives you space to think through what the inheritance represents, not just what to do with it financially.

How To Use This Workbook

This workbook is designed to support you during a period of transition. It is a companion to The Checkpoint Strategy™ workshop and offers a simple way to organize your thoughts, understand your financial picture, and identify a few meaningful next steps.

How to use it:

Start with the sections that feel most helpful. There is no right or wrong order. You can work through one page, a few pages, or all of it depending on what you need right now.

What this workbook is:

- A tool to help you gain clarity
- A place to capture ideas and questions
- A simple structure for your next 90 days

What this workbook is not:

- A full financial plan
- Tax or legal advice
- Something you need to complete cover to cover

Where You Are Today

Transitions affect both finances and emotions. Before we map your next steps, take a moment to acknowledge where you are starting.

Three words that describe how I feel about money right now:

What worries me most in the next 30 days:

What I most want to protect during this transition:

There is no need to solve these concerns today. Naming them is the first step toward clarity.

Support and Stability Map

Even during uncertainty, you are not starting from zero. This page helps you identify the people and resources already available to you.

People I can reach out to for support:

Resources I already have:

Examples include savings, severance, benefits, skills, networks, or community support.

Clarity begins with recognizing what is already in place.

Income Snapshot

Understanding your sources of income is a key part of your 30 day checkpoint. List any income that may apply to your situation.

INCOME WORKSHEET

Income Source:

Current Monthly

Projected Monthly

Your salary, wages, tips

Your spouse's salary, wages, tips

Other Income:

Unemployment Compensation

Severance Compensation

Savings (used for living expenses)

Part-Time Work

Total Monthly Income

Use this number as a starting point. It does not need to be perfect.

Essential Spending Snapshot

During transition, clarity about essential spending creates stability. List your non negotiable expenses.

Minimum Debt Payments

Other Required Expenses
	Monthly	Annual
Total Essential Expenses

This number helps you understand your spending floor during transition.

Runway Estimate

Your financial runway is the length of time your current resources can support your essential needs.

A simple way to think about it is:

Runway equals

Total Resources For Living Expenses

Example
$100,000

divided by

Total Essential Monthly Expenses

$5,000

Approximate Financial Runway

20 Months

How this number makes me feel:

One action I can take this week to extend my runway:

Examples: review one expense category, confirm unemployment eligibility, delay a non essential purchase.

You do not need to build a full plan today. This is about understanding the road ahead.

Adjustable Spending Review

Identify expenses you may be able to adjust temporarily during your job search.

Debt Snapshot and Priority Map

This worksheet helps you identify your debt priorities during transition.

DEBT SUMMARY

Creditor or loan type	Minimum payment	Interest rate	Balance

Debt Priority Map:

High Priority:
(must stay current)

Medium Priority:
(contact lender if needed)

Low Priority:
(non essential or can be paused)

Notes or ideas:

First 30 Days Checkpoint

The first 30 days of a transition are about stability.

Stabilize income and benefits:

- Confirm severance details
- Review unemployment eligibility
- Understand benefits deadlines and coverage dates
- Identify essential expenses

Avoid urgent decisions:

- Delay major financial commitments
- Focus on clarity, not optimization

My first 30 day priorities:

*You do not need to build a full plan today.
This is about understanding the road ahead.*

Next 30 Days Checkpoint

Once the first month settles, you can clarify cash flow and reset your financial priorities.

My next 30 day goals:

Identify three expenses I can adjust without affecting well being

One professional I want to speak with (coach, tax professional, planner)

One habit that would help me feel more grounded

The goal is to move forward gradually and confidently.

Final 30 Days Checkpoint

By this point, you can begin rebuilding structure for the next chapter.

What stability looks like for me 90 days from now:

Two habits or routines that support that stability:

A financial task I want to complete in this window:

This section is about progress, not perfection.

Decisions I Do Not Need To Make Yet

Not every decision must happen now. Deferring certain decisions is a valid way to reduce stress.

Decisions I can delay:

Earliest date these decisions need to be reviewed:

Permission to pause is part of a healthy transition.

Questions To Bring To a Professional

As you move through this workbook, you may uncover questions for your support team.

Questions for a career coach:

Questions for a tax professional:

Questions for a financial planner:

If a clarity conversation would be helpful, you can request one at any time.

My 30, 60, and 90 Day Plan

Use this page to bring everything together.

My 30 day plan:

One financial task:

One self care action:

One connection to make:

My 60 day plan:

One financial task:

A habit I want to reinforce:

I want to reconnect with:

My 90 day plan:

Two goals that will help me feel more stable:

Your Next Checkpoint

The Early Retirement Checkpoint Guide

Financial Clarity for Life's In-Betweens

A simple guide to the decisions that don't wait until 65.

How to Use This Guide

This guide is designed to support you as you consider or move into early retirement. It is a companion to The Checkpoint Strategy™ and offers a simple way to organize your thinking before you make decisions that are difficult to undo.

What this guide is:

- A tool to help you gain clarity on the decisions that are unique to retiring early
- A place to capture questions before a conversation with a planner
- A simple structure for the next 90 days

What this guide is not:

- A full financial plan
 - Tax or legal advice
 - A replacement for a Social Security timing analysis or pension election review specific to your situation

Where You Are Today

Retiring earlier than the standard timeline — by choice or otherwise — brings a different kind of transition than a typical retirement.

- What prompted this timeline? (a choice, a layoff, a health consideration, a spouse's plans)
- Three words that describe how I feel about retiring on this timeline:
- What I most want to protect as I make this decision:

There is no need to have this fully resolved today. Naming it is the first step.

The Five Decisions That Don't Wait

1. Healthcare Before Medicare

If you're retiring before 65, you need a coverage plan for the gap. Compare COBRA, ACA marketplace plans, and a spouse's employer coverage — including real monthly costs, not just premiums.

Question to answer: How many years until I'm Medicare-eligible, and what will coverage cost me until then?

2. Social Security Timing

Claiming early (as soon as 62), at full retirement age, or later (up to 70) changes your monthly benefit substantially and permanently. Retiring early doesn't mean you have to claim early.

Question to answer: Have I run the numbers on claiming at 62 vs. full retirement age vs. 70 — not just the monthly amount, but the break-even age?

3. Pension Elections

If a pension is part of your retirement, lump sum vs. annuity and survivor benefit elections are typically permanent once made.

Question to answer: Do I understand the tradeoffs of every election option available to me, and has anyone modeled them side by side?

4. Portfolio Longevity

An early retirement means your savings need to last longer than a standard 30-year retirement horizon. A withdrawal rate that works for someone retiring at 65 may not work for someone retiring at 55.

Question to answer: Has anyone run a retirement readiness projection based on my actual retirement age, not a generic assumption?

5. Required Minimum Distributions (RMDs) and Roth Conversions

The years between early retirement and RMD age are often the best window for Roth conversions, when income — and tax rates — may be lower.

Question to answer: Am I using the low-income years before RMDs begin to my advantage?

Income Snapshot

List every income source that may apply once you retire.

Income Source	Current Monthly	Projected Monthly (Post-Retirement)

First 30 days — Stabilize

- Confirm health coverage start date and cost

- Understand any pension election deadlines
- Delay any irreversible decisions (Social Security claim, pension election, large withdrawals)

Next 30 days — Clarify

- Run a retirement income projection based on your real numbers
- Identify one professional to talk to (financial planner, tax advisor)

Final 30 days — Decide

- Make Social Security and pension elections with full information
 - Set your withdrawal strategy for year one

The Divorce Financial Checkpoint Guide

Financial Clarity for Life's In-Betweens

A simple guide to the financial questions behind the legal ones.

How to Use This Guide

This guide is designed to support you during divorce, separate from — but alongside — the legal process. It offers a simple way to organize the financial side of your situation before you finalize a settlement.

What this guide is:

- A tool to help you understand the financial implications of divorce
- A place to capture questions to bring to your attorney or a financial planner
- A simple structure for evaluating a proposed settlement

What this guide is not:

- Legal advice or a substitute for your divorce attorney
 - Tax advice
 - A guarantee of any particular financial outcome

Where You Are Today

Divorce affects finances and emotions together. Before reviewing the numbers, take a moment to acknowledge where you're starting.

- What worries me most about the financial side of this process:
- Three words that describe how I feel about money right now:
- What I most want to protect financially:

There is no need to solve these today. Naming them is the first step toward clarity.

Five Things to Understand Before You Sign

1. The Real Value of a Settlement

A settlement's headline number isn't the same as its after-tax, after-cost value. A dollar in a Roth IRA is not the same as a dollar in a traditional 401(k) or a dollar of home equity.

Question to answer: Have I evaluated the after-tax value of each asset in the proposed settlement, not just the total?

2. QDROs and Retirement Account Division

Dividing a 401(k) or pension typically requires a Qualified Domestic Relations Order (QDRO) — a separate legal document from your divorce decree. IRAs are divided differently, through a transfer incident to divorce.

Question to answer: Do I understand which accounts require a QDRO, and has one been drafted correctly?

3. Tax Filing Status and Support

Your filing status changes, and the tax treatment of spousal support depends on when your agreement was finalized. Child support is generally not deductible or taxable; spousal support rules vary by agreement date.

Question to answer: Do I understand how my tax situation changes in the first year after divorce?

4. A New Household Budget

Rebuilding a cash flow plan for a single household — often on a single income — is one of the most immediate practical needs after divorce.

Question to answer: Have I built a realistic budget based on my post-divorce income and expenses, not my pre-divorce ones?

5. Insurance and Beneficiary Updates

Life insurance, health coverage, and beneficiary designations on retirement accounts are easy to overlook after a divorce is final — and easy to get wrong if left unchanged.

Question to answer: Have I updated every beneficiary designation and insurance policy that still names my former spouse?

Settlement Snapshot

Use this to organize what's on the table before you evaluate it.

Asset / Account	Proposed Allocation	Tax Treatment	Notes
Home / real estate
401(k) / retirement accounts
Investment accounts
Business interests
Debt
Spousal / child support

My First 90 Days Checkpoint

First 30 days — Stabilize

- Open individual bank and credit accounts if you haven't already
- Confirm health insurance coverage going forward

- Delay any major financial commitments until the settlement is finalized

Next 30 days — Clarify

- Build a post-divorce household budget
- Identify one professional to talk to about the settlement (financial planner, tax advisor)

Final 30 days — Rebuild

- Update beneficiary designations and insurance
 - Set a savings and investment plan for your new household

The Inheritance Checkpoint Guide

Financial Clarity for Life's In-Betweens

A simple guide for the first 90 days after an inheritance.

How to Use This Guide

This guide is designed to support you after receiving an inheritance or unexpected wealth. It offers a simple way to organize your thinking — there is rarely a need to decide anything quickly.

What this guide is:

- A tool to help you gain clarity before making decisions
- A place to capture questions and understand key deadlines
- A simple structure for your next 90 days

What this guide is not:

- A full financial plan
 - Tax or legal advice
 - Something you need to act on immediately

Where You Are Today

An inheritance often brings a mix of emotions alongside the financial questions — relief, grief, opportunity, guilt, or all of them at once.

- What I'm feeling right now, beyond the financial questions:
- What I most want to honor or protect with this inheritance:
- What worries me most about making the "wrong" decision:

There is no need to resolve these today. Naming them is the first step toward clarity.

Five Things Worth Understanding First

1. Inherited IRA Rules

Required distribution timelines differ significantly depending on your relationship to the person who passed away, and whether they were already taking required minimum distributions. Getting this wrong can trigger unnecessary taxes or penalties.

Question to answer: Do I know which distribution rules apply to any retirement account I inherited?

2. Step-Up in Cost Basis

Inherited assets like stocks, mutual funds, or real estate typically receive a "step-up" in cost basis to their value on the date of death — which can significantly reduce capital gains tax if you sell.

Question to answer: Do I know the stepped-up basis of what I inherited, and has it been documented?

3. Inherited Real Estate

Keeping, renting, or selling an inherited home is both a financial and emotional decision. Each option has different tax, maintenance, and cash flow implications.

Question to answer: Have I weighed the true costs and benefits of keeping this property against selling it?

4. Investing the Proceeds

An inheritance doesn't need to be invested the way it was previously invested, or the way anyone else tells you to invest it. It deserves an allocation that fits your goals and risk tolerance.

Question to answer: Does my plan for this money reflect my goals, or is it just sitting in whatever account it arrived in?

5. Debt, Goals, and Balance

Paying down debt, funding goals, and investing for the future are not mutually exclusive. Most people benefit from doing some of each, in the right proportion.

Question to answer: Have I thought through the right balance for my situation, rather than doing "all" of one thing?

What I Inherited — Snapshot

Asset	Approximate Value	Tax Treatment (if known)	Any Deadline?
Retirement account (IRA / 401k)
Brokerage / investment account
Real estate
Cash / bank account
Other

My First 90 Days Checkpoint

First 30 days — Protect

- Confirm any distribution deadlines on inherited retirement accounts
- Keep inherited funds in place; avoid spending or investing under pressure
- Identify what, if anything, has a real deadline (most things do not)

Next 30 days — Understand

- Document the cost basis of inherited assets
- Identify one professional to talk to (financial planner, tax advisor, estate attorney if needed)

Final 30 days — Decide, Thoughtfully

- Build an investment or spending plan aligned with your goals
 - Make a plan for any inherited property

Decisions I Do Not Need to Make Yet

Almost nothing about an inheritance needs to be decided immediately. Write down what can wait.

- Decisions I can delay:
 - Earliest date these decisions need to be reviewed:

Questions to Bring to a Professional

- Questions about inherited retirement account rules:
 - Questions about taxes on what I inherited:
 - Questions about investing or using the money:

If You Would Like Additional Support

This guide is designed to help you gain clarity after an inheritance, at your own pace. If you'd benefit from a deeper conversation, support is available.

Schedule a complimentary Where We Begin session. It is not a financial plan and there is no obligation of any kind — a structured, confidential space to review where you are, what's changed, what decisions matter now, and what can wait.

Email Nurture Sequences — 4 Sequences

Email Nurture Sequences

Four five-email sequences (20 emails total), one per transition. Each is triggered automatically when a visitor downloads the matching lead magnet, spans roughly two weeks, and ends by inviting the reader to a complimentary Where We Begin session. Merge tags like `{{first_name}}` are filled in by the email platform at send time.

Email Nurture Sequence — Job Loss & Layoff

Triggered when a lead submits the form on `job-loss.html` and downloads "Your Next Checkpoint" workbook.

Goal: move from download to a booked Where We Begin session.

Tone: calm, practical, no urgency tactics — matches Checkpoint Planning's brand voice.

Email 1 — Immediate (delivery + welcome)

Subject: Your Next Checkpoint workbook is here

Preview text: Plus one thing to do before anything else

Hi {{first_name}},

Here's your copy of Your Next Checkpoint: Financial Clarity During Career Transition — a workbook built specifically for people navigating job loss, layoff, or career change.

[Download Your Workbook →]

One suggestion before you dive in: start with the "Where You Are Today" page. It's not a spreadsheet — it's a place to name what's actually on your mind right now. Clarity starts there, not with the numbers.

There's no rush to work through the rest. Come back to it whenever you're ready.

If it would help to talk through your specific situation, I offer a complimentary 45-minute "Where We Begin" session — no obligation, no sales pitch. Just a conversation.

Email 2 — Day 2

Subject: The first 30 days after a layoff

Preview text: What actually needs your attention right now

Hi {{first_name}},

If you've had a chance to open the workbook, you've probably seen the "First 30 Days Checkpoint" section. A few things worth repeating here:

- Confirm your severance details — including how and when it's paid, and whether it affects unemployment eligibility.
- Know your benefits deadlines — especially health coverage. COBRA elections typically have a 60-day window.
- Avoid big financial decisions right now. Nothing about your 401(k), your home, or a major purchase needs to be decided this week.

The goal of the first 30 days isn't to have a plan. It's to stabilize.

If you want a second set of eyes on your severance package or benefits timeline, that's exactly what a Where We Begin session is for.

Email 3 — Day 5

Subject: What to do with your 401(k) (and what not to do)

Preview text: This decision is easy to get wrong under time pressure

Hi {{first_name}},

One question I hear constantly after a layoff: "What do I do with my old 401(k)?"

The honest answer: it depends, and it's rarely urgent. Generally you have a few paths — leave it where it is, roll it into an IRA, or (in some cases) roll it into a new employer's plan later. Each has different cost, investment option, and tax implications.

What I'd avoid: cashing it out. Between taxes and an early withdrawal penalty, it's usually the most expensive option — even when it's tempting during a cash crunch.

If you're staring at this decision and not sure which way to go, let's talk it through. No cost, no obligation.

Email 4 — Day 9

Subject: How long will your savings actually last?

Preview text: The "runway" question, answered

Hi {{first_name}},

The Runway Estimate page in your workbook is simple on purpose: take your total resources for living expenses, divide by your essential monthly expenses, and you get a rough number of months.

That number changes how everything else feels. Knowing you have 14 months of runway — instead of an anxious guess — makes every other decision easier to make calmly.

If you haven't run this number yet, it's worth 10 minutes. And if you want help thinking through ways to extend it, that's a conversation I'm glad to have.

Email 5 — Day 14

Subject: No pressure — just an open door

Preview text: Where We Begin, whenever you're ready

Hi {{first_name}},

I'll keep this one short.

A layoff puts a lot in front of you at once. If you've worked through some of the workbook and have questions, or if you haven't opened it since the day you downloaded it — both are completely normal.

The Where We Begin session is still here whenever it's useful: 45 minutes, no cost, no obligation. We talk through where you are, what's changed, and what (if anything) makes sense to do next.

Email 2 — Day 2

Subject: The healthcare gap nobody warns you about

Preview text: What coverage actually costs before 65

Hi {{first_name}},

If you're retiring before 65, healthcare is usually the first real budget shock. COBRA, an ACA marketplace plan, or a spouse's employer coverage are the three most common paths — and the cost difference between them can be significant.

Before locking in a retirement date, it's worth pricing out real coverage costs for your specific health needs, not just the average premium you see quoted online.

Happy to walk through this with you directly.

Email 3 — Day 5

Subject: 62, full retirement age, or 70?

Preview text: The Social Security question, in plain terms

Hi {{first_name}},

Claiming Social Security at 62 instead of your full retirement age can permanently reduce your monthly benefit by roughly 25-30%. Waiting until 70 increases it. There's no universally "right" answer — it depends on your health, other income, and what else you're drawing down.

The mistake I see most often: claiming early simply because retirement started early, without running the numbers on the alternative.

If you haven't modeled this out, it's one of the highest-value 45 minutes you can spend before retiring.

Email 4 — Day 9

Subject: Pension decisions you can't take back

Preview text: Lump sum vs. annuity, and survivor elections

Hi {{first_name}},

If a pension is part of your retirement, the lump sum vs. annuity decision — and any survivor benefit election — is typically permanent the moment you sign.

These decisions deserve a side-by-side comparison specific to your numbers, not a rule of thumb. If you're facing this choice, let's look at it together before you decide.

Subject: What a settlement number doesn't tell you

Preview text: After-tax value vs. headline value

Hi {{first_name}},

Two settlements with the same total dollar figure can leave you in very different financial positions, depending on what's in them. A dollar in a Roth IRA, a dollar in a traditional 401(k), and a dollar of home equity are not equivalent once taxes and liquidity are considered.

Before agreeing to a proposed split, it's worth understanding the real, after-tax value of what's on the table — not just the total.

I'm glad to look at this with you, confidentially.

Email 3 — Day 5

Subject: QDROs, in plain language

Preview text: What's required to actually divide a retirement account

Hi {{first_name}},

Dividing a 401(k) or pension usually requires a separate legal document called a QDRO (Qualified Domestic Relations Order) — distinct from your divorce decree. Getting this drafted and processed correctly matters; mistakes here can delay or complicate the transfer.

IRAs work differently, through a transfer incident to divorce, without a QDRO.

If you're not sure which rules apply to your accounts, that's worth clarifying before things move further along.

Inherited stocks, funds, and real estate typically get a "step-up" in cost basis to their value on the date of death. That can significantly reduce — or eliminate — capital gains tax if you sell.

It's worth documenting this basis now, while records are easiest to gather, even if you're not ready to decide what to do with the asset yet.
